THE FRED R. BUNKER PAPERS

Principal Subject: Correspondence, papers, diaries, extracts and clipping of missionary activities, work in Southern Africa and Mozambique mission stations, as well as daily activities in the United States.

Inclusive Dates: 1835-1975
Biographical Data: The Reverend Fred Robert Bunker (1859-1946) was a Congregational minister and a missionary to Africa. Rev. Bunker was graduated in 1887 from Olivet College, Olivet, Michigan, and was ordained in 1889. Through his involvement with the Students Volunteer Movement of the Young Men's Christian Association, Bunker met Isabel Helen Richards (1865-1950), a student volunteer for the Young Women's Christian Association. They were married in 1891. Under the auspices of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the Bunkers immediately sailed to Africa to serve as missionaries. The Bunkers were initially stationed at Mt. Silinda, Southern Rhodesia, where they remained for many years. Following their assignment at Mt. Silinda, the Bunkers relocated in 1904 to Beira, Mozambique and in 1911 to Durban, South African. In 1917, after nearly three decades of service at various mission stations in Southern African and Mozambique, the Bunkers returned to the United States. The Bunker family resided in Oberlin, Ohio and Wilton, Connecticut, as well as various U.S. and other locations throughout New England. After his return to the U.S. And even after his retirement in 1940, Fred Bunker continued to work with the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to promote and to fund mission work in Africa. After his death in 1946, his daughter, Edith Bunker Davis (1900-1991), carried on the family's commitment to mission work. Davis, with help from several other family members, created the Bunker Family Scholarship Fund which provided financial assistance to young scholars in Africa. She also became involved in supporting African students who had come to the U.S. to pursue their education. The evolution of missionary work in Southern African, due greatly to the efforts of the Bunker family and others similarly focused, is traced through the correspondence and writings of the Bunker family.

BLACK COWBOYS COMIC BOOK

Principal Subjects: Golden Legacy: Illustrated History Magazine. Black Cowboys history written so that young people can understand easily.

Inclusive Dates: 1976, (Issued quarterly)

Brief Synopsis: Black Cowboys: “When the gun smoke and the dust of the cattle herds lifted, somewhere along the trail some 5,000 Black Cowboys were lost by our historians. Writers of western fiction along with the producers of western movies had ignored the Black Cowboy. However, the facts show that Black men also rode the cattle trails and were heroes and villains too, as they faced all the dangers and hardships of a cowboy’s life.” These comic books tell the stories of only a few of these men.
