J. Harris in militia uniform, pre-Civil War or early Civil War	#55
Penciled on back is “Harris, J [...] / Maj.” Middle initial is not legible. Plumed shako has crossed cannons, indicating artillery. Possibly this is John Gideon Harris (1834-1908), later Major of the 20 th Alabama Infantry, while he was in the Greensboro Light Artillery Guards, January-April 1861. Major Harris made a couple of donations to ADAH which are noted in the accession register, although no mention is made of a photograph.

Martin family photographs, LPP31
Daguerreotypes (2) (2 ¾ x 3 ¼ – sixth-plate)
Condition of images: Good
Condition of case: Good; image of Sarah Ann loose
Both plates have the following handwritten on the back: “Taken in Tuscaloosa Ala in the year 1840 by Dr Harrington & Prof Barnard of the University of Alabama.” Sarah Ann Martin’s ends with: “& the first daguerreotype ever taken in Tuscaloosa.” Joshua L. Martin’s says, “and was among the first taken in the city.” The handwriting is the same on each plate and identifies him as “Gov. Joshua L. Martin,” which he did not become until 1845. According to the accession register (July 17, 1953), the handwriting on the back of the daguerreotype is Gov. Martin’s. However, the handwriting does not match Gov. Martin’s handwriting in a letter to his wife in 1854, but it could be her handwriting. On the mat surrounding his photo is printed: “Daguerreotype by W. H. Harrington.”
