The voices of small town Alabamians will resound as participants explore the political, economic, and societal impact of significant historical events on community transitions from the Civil War through the WWI eras. Participants will journey to multiple historic sites and engage in a guided architectural walking tour in the beautiful historic district in Eufaula. Various historians and authors will share their expertise to enrich content knowledge and classroom application. Small Town Voices of Alabama will integrate the use of primary sources, oral history, deliberation guides and other engaging activities that can be easily incorporated into the secondary classroom.
