Auburn

June 21-23, 2023

Alanna Bradley, Autauga County Schools

Andrea Myers, Autauga County Schools

After the Civil War, life changed dramatically for southerners, especially African Americans. With the rich history of east Alabama as a backdrop, participants in this institute will visit historic sites in Auburn and Tuskegee and use primary sources to gain a deeper understanding of the educational, economic, and social conditions of the Reconstruction Era. They will develop learning activities that they can use in their own classrooms to engage students with Alabama's story during this complex period of change and transition.
